7.1.1: Institution has initiated the Gender Audit and measures for the promotion of gender equity

The Pragati Engineering College (PEC) has taken proactive steps to ensure gender equity through its Gender Audit initiative. This includes organizing awareness programs tailored for female students and women faculty members. These programs aim to empower them with knowledge about security measures, addressing their specific needs, and enhancing facilities that cater to women's requirements. The Gender Audit not only demonstrates the institution's commitment to fostering a safe and inclusive environment but also signifies its dedication to addressing gender-related concerns effectively. By promoting a culture of gender sensitivity and equality, the PEC strives to create a conducive atmosphere where everyone, regardless of their gender, can thrive academically and professionally.

The Women Empowerment and Grievance Cell (WEGC) actively organizes awareness initiatives for women. Annually, WEGC commemorates International Women's Day, inviting notable speakers to address both students and staff. Engaging activities, including games, are held during this event, fostering a supportive and empowering environment.
